8. Required Medical and Driving Aptitude Examinations

In order to obtain a driving licence in categories “A”, “A1”, “A2” or “AM”, a learner driver classified in either Medical Fitness Group1 or Medical Fitness Group2 must possess a document issued by the competent physician certifying medical fitness to drive. The required examinations are specified in Annex 1 to the applicable Decree No.13/1992 (VI.26.) of the Minister of Welfare. The National Transport Authority conducts an extraordinary driving aptitude assessment procedure, known as “PÁV”, using a driving test. This examination is required before a candidate may take the examination following the fifth unsuccessful practical driving examination. The applicable examinations are governed by Decree No.41/2004 (IV.7.) of the Minister of Economy and Transport.

9. Conditions for Admission to the Course and Eligibility to Take Examinations, Consequences of Failing to Meet the Examination Requirements, and Provisions Concerning First-Aid Training

Conditions for Admission to the Course

The student declares that they:

- meet the medical and driving aptitude requirements specified in the preceding section of this information document;
- have completed primary-level education; and
- are not unfit to drive from a road-safety perspective.

Age Restrictions and Other Conditions for Obtaining a Driving Licence

- The only age restriction for obtaining an “A” category driving licence is 24 years of age, or 20 years of age if the applicant has at least two years of previous riding experience with an “A2” category licence. The “A” category may be obtained:
 - without previous qualification;
 - with an “A1” driving licence obtained within the previous two years;
 - with an “A1” driving licence obtained more than two years earlier;
 - with an “A2” driving licence obtained within the previous two years; or
 - with an “A2” driving licence obtained more than two years earlier.
- The minimum age for obtaining an “A1” category driving licence is 16 years.
- The minimum age for obtaining an “A2” category driving licence is 18 years. The “A2” category may be obtained:
 - without previous qualification;
 - with an “A1” driving licence obtained within the previous two years; or
 - with an “A1” driving licence obtained more than two years earlier.
- The minimum age for obtaining an “AM” category driving licence is 14 years.

Conditions for Admission to Examinations

A student may take the theoretical examination if they have completed the theoretical course and meet all of the applicable requirements, including possession of a valid medical fitness certificate.

A student may be entered for the practical examination after passing the theoretical examination and completing the minimum number of practical training hours prescribed for the relevant category.

Statutory Deadlines

At least one theoretical examination attempt must take place within nine months of the start of the course. The student must pass the theoretical examination within one year of the start of the course.

The practical road examination must be passed within two years of passing the theoretical examination.

Persons Considered Unfit to Drive from a Road-safety Perspective

A person must be considered unfit to drive if they:

- have been prohibited from driving by a final and binding court or administrative decision;
- have been ordered by a court to undergo compulsory medical treatment or compulsory psychiatric treatment, for the duration of that treatment;
- have had their driving entitlement suspended by a final and enforceable decision of the competent authority, for the duration of the suspension;
- have been placed under guardianship by a court because their legal capacity has been excluded or restricted;
- have had their driving licence temporarily withdrawn by the transport administration authority under the Act on the Penalty-Point System for Road Traffic Offences, from the date on which the decision becomes final until they submit proof to the transport administration authority that they have completed the retraining course commenced following the withdrawal. This period must be at least six months from the date on which the driving licence was surrendered; or
- have been found medically unfit under the ministerial decree governing the assessment of the medical fitness of road-vehicle drivers, until they regain medical fitness.

Consequences of Failing to Meet the Conditions for Taking an Examination

A candidate may notify the competent Examination Centre electronically, through the training organisation and the Examination Centre's information system, that they will be absent from or wish to cancel an examination.

If the training organisation electronically reports the candidate's absence through the Examination Centre's information system no later than the eighth day before the examination, the fee for the cancelled examination does not have to be paid.

Candidates who arrive after the examination briefing has begun may no longer be admitted and may not commence the examination.

If a candidate fails to attend a scheduled examination for reasons beyond their control, they may submit an application for justification to the Examination Centre electronically through the training organisation and the Examination Centre's information system.

An absence may be justified only on the basis of an objective circumstance beyond the candidate's control, which must be supported by reliable evidence. Such evidence may include, in particular, but is not limited to:

- a medical or hospital certificate;
- a certificate issued by an official body;
- a certificate issued by an authority; or
- a certificate issued by a public transport, road transport, or passenger transport service provider.

The application must describe all circumstances that support the conclusion that the candidate was not at fault. The supporting evidence must be submitted together with the application in the same document. If the required information or evidence is missing, the application will be considered incomplete and the missing information or evidence may not subsequently be supplied. Consequently, the candidate cannot be exempted from paying the re-examination fee.

The application for justification may be submitted within eight calendar days of the date of the missed examination or, if submission was prevented by an obstacle, within eight calendar days of the date on which the obstacle ceased to exist.

This deadline is preclusive. No application for equitable relief may be submitted due to failure to meet the deadline.

The fee paid for a missed examination is non-refundable.

An application for justification and its attachments may result in a favourable decision only if they were submitted within the prescribed deadline and provide reliable evidence that the candidate was not at fault.

Even if the application is approved:

- the period available for obtaining the qualification may not be exceeded; and
- the validity period of the course specified by law will not be extended.

Provisions Concerning the Acquisition of First Aid Knowledge

- The acquisition and certification of first-aid knowledge for road-vehicle drivers is governed by Decree No.31/1992 (XII.19.) of the Minister of Welfare. Under this decree, first-aid training is provided by the Hungarian Red Cross, which also organises the examination.
- Exemption from presenting the above-mentioned Hungarian Red Cross certificate applies to persons who can provide proof that they are:
 - doctors, dentists, or pharmacists who graduated from a university of medical sciences;
 - veterinarians who graduated from a university of veterinary medicine;
 - graduates of higher-education programmes in health visiting, dietetics, paramedic studies, physiotherapy, health-care education, nursing, or public-health inspection;
 - graduates of health-care secondary schools or vocational schools.
- Exemption also applies to persons who:
 - obtained a driving licence for category “D” or a trolleybus driving licence between 1 July 1969 and 31 December 1983; or
 - after 1 January 1984, obtained:
 - a driving licence for any vehicle category;
 - a trolleybus driving licence; or
 - road-vehicle driving entitlement for an agricultural tractor, moped, or slow vehicle.
- The list of exemptions from attending and taking examinations in certain categories and subjects is contained in Sections 4.1.1, 4.1.2, and 4.1.3 of Annex 3 to Decree No. 24/2005 (IV.21.) of the Minister of Economy and Transport.

10. Method of Verifying Identity and Completion of Primary-Level Education

Completion of primary-level education must be verified before the first examination and, at the latest, before booking the next examination. Otherwise, the student may not book another examination appointment.

Primary-level education may be verified in the following ways:

- by presenting a previously obtained driving licence valid for another category;
- by presenting a doctoral title obtained in the person’s own right and recorded in their Hungarian identity document;
- by presenting the original document certifying the educational qualification, or a copy certified by a notary public or by the issuing institution;
- in the case of foreign certificates and diplomas, by presenting the original document together with an officially certified translation. An officially certified translation is not required if the certificate or diploma, in terms of its content and format, appears in the “Certificate and Diploma Sample Collection” established by the transport authority; and
- in the case of foreign certificates and diplomas, by presenting one of the following documents issued by a competent Hungarian authority:
 - a recognition decision;
 - a naturalisation or equivalence endorsement;

- an official certificate;
- an official confirmation;
- official information; or
- a student-status certificate issued by a Hungarian higher-education institution no more than three months earlier, provided that the document states that the relevant certificate or diploma proves, or presupposes, at least primary-level education.

11. Conditions for the Issuance of a Driving Licence

A candidate meets the conditions for the issuance of a driving licence if they have passed all prescribed examination subjects or have been exempted from them under the law. After the final examination, the transport authority issues an electronic examination certificate confirming completion of all examination requirements prescribed for the relevant category. As a condition for issuing the driving licence, the candidate must meet the prescribed examination requirements and — except in the case of category “K” and the recognition of a driving licence issued by a foreign authority — present proof of having acquired the required first-aid knowledge. In the case of the recognition of a document authorising the holder to drive that was issued by a foreign authority, where the recognition is subject to an examination, proof of first-aid knowledge is not required.

The document certifying the acquisition of first-aid knowledge, except in the case of category “K”, must be presented at the government document office. In the case of the recognition of a driving entitlement document issued by a foreign authority where the recognition is subject to an examination, this document is not required.

Road first-aid certificate: The student must present the “Hungarian Red Cross certificate” certifying the acquisition of first-aid knowledge.

If a student is absent from classroom-based instruction, supplementary lessons must be provided for the subject areas that the student did not attend. The supplementary lessons must be incorporated into the timetable and reported in accordance with the rules governing amendments to the timetable. Before the start of the training, the head of the driving school may exempt a student from attending classes in a particular subject if the student holds a specialised qualification corresponding to that subject. At the student's request, deaf and physically disabled students may be exempted from attending the subjects of the theoretical course. The training organisation assists exempted students in preparing for the examinations in accordance with a separate agreement concluded with the student.

Conditions for Exemption from an Examination Subject

The Examination Centre may grant an exemption from the obligation to take an examination in a particular subject, based on an electronic notification, if the student possesses the appropriate qualification or educational background.

17. Transfer of a Student and Issuance of a Certificate of Completed Training

A student may request a transfer to another driving school at any time. In such a case, a training certificate will be issued. The purpose of completing and using the training certificate is to provide an authentic record of the training completed by the student if the student wishes to continue their training with another training organisation. The certificate must be downloaded from the "Kökény system" and then forwarded to the student. The student then forwards it to the receiving organisation, which takes over the student's training. At the student's request, the form required for transferring the student must be issued within three working days. The refusal to issue the form may not be used to prevent the student from transferring to another training organisation.

18. Addresses of the Training Locations

Theoretical Training

- E-learning: provided online and not tied to a physical location.

19. Procedure and Fees for Requesting Additional Lessons

In the case of students, the transport authority and the Examination Centre consider the training completed if, based on the timetable and attendance sheets submitted to the Examination Centre, the student has demonstrably attended the classroom-based theoretical lessons for the relevant subjects for at least the total number of hours prescribed for the training, excluding supplementary lessons. The training organisation may also provide courses with a higher number of hours than the prescribed minimum.

If a student is absent for more than the permitted number of hours, the training organisation will provide supplementary lessons. The fee for supplementary classroom-based instruction is HUF 25,000.

A student must submit a written request to the training organisation for supplementary e-learning.

If the student is unable to complete the e-learning course within the prescribed time frame, supplementary training may be requested. The fee for supplementary e-learning is HUF 22,000. The supplementary training period is 10 hours/30 days.

A student who has been registered for a practical examination but, for a reason not attributable to the training organisation, fails to complete the compulsory practical lessons by the planned examination date — for example, by failing to attend a practical lesson arranged with the instructor — acknowledges that they may not be admitted to the practical examination and that the practical examination fee will not be refunded.

21. Rights and Obligations of Candidates

Rights of Candidates

Candidates have the right:

- to be informed by the training organisation of the location and time of the examination;
- to request that the examination be held at a new time if the examiner is more than ten minutes late. In such a case, the candidate may take the examination again without paying an additional examination fee;
- to receive clear and precise instructions from the driving instructor concerning the road route, the manoeuvre to be performed, and any deviation from the straight-ahead direction. The instructor must provide the information sufficiently in advance and, where necessary, supplement or reinforce it;
- to have the examiner communicate any intention to deviate from the planned examination route to the instructor without disturbing the candidate;
- to receive a brief explanation from the examiner concerning the procedure of the examination;
- to be informed of the result of the examination;
- to receive a brief evaluation of their performance from the examiner. The evaluation must be objective, comprehensible, and focused on the essential facts, and should assist the candidate in becoming an independent road user or, in the event of an unsuccessful examination, in preparing further;
- to receive an explanation from the examiner concerning:
- the procedure of the examination;
- the operation of the examination programme in the case of a computer-based examination;

- permitted and prohibited equipment;
- the information necessary to complete the tasks;
- the structure of the individual questions and the method of selecting answers;
- the pass standard for each task set and the time available for completing it;
- markings considered incorrect in a written examination;
- the possibilities for asking questions during the examination;
- the consequences of violating examination rules;
- the starting and finishing times of the examination; and
- the steps to be taken after a computer-based examination;
- to receive answers from the examiner, within the time available, to questions concerning the assessment of the examination;
- to be informed by the examiner, if this has not already taken place before the examination, of any further steps to be taken. Candidates who have failed must be informed of:
 - how to apply for a re-examination;
 - the customer service hours of the regional directorate;
 - the expected date and location of the re-examination;
 - the amount payable for the re-examination; and
 - the method of payment;
- if they do not speak Hungarian, to declare the language in which they wish to take the examination. The chosen language must also be indicated on the application form. Instead of Hungarian, a candidate who does not speak Hungarian may take the examination in their mother tongue or in another official language of their country of citizenship. The oral examination of a candidate who does not speak Hungarian is conducted with the assistance of an interpreter in accordance with the legislation governing specialised translation and interpreting;
- to have the examiner prepare a report of any extraordinary event occurring during an examination and of the measures taken. Depending on the seriousness of the event, the examiner may suspend the candidate's examination or the entire examination. An extraordinary event means any disturbing circumstance that disrupts the normal course of the examination, prevents it from being conducted in accordance with the rules, or prevents the candidate's performance from being assessed objectively.

Obligations of Candidates

Candidates must:

- appear punctually at the examination location at the scheduled time. In the case of theoretical examinations, a candidate arriving after the examiner has begun the briefing may not take the examination. A candidate who fails to appear at the scheduled time or arrives later than permitted may take another examination without paying a new examination fee only if they notify the transport authority in person or in writing of their absence no later than the fifth day before the examination;
- wait for the examiner for no more than ten minutes from the scheduled examination time;
- prove their identity by presenting an identity card. If an identity card is not available, the examiner must accept:
 - a student identity card, up to the age of 14;
 - a passport; or
 - a card-format driving licence.

An identity document that does not contain a front-facing photograph or that has expired may not be used to prove identity.

A candidate who already holds a driving licence must present the driving licence at every examination, together with the examination certificate proving the acquisition of any category not recorded on the driving licence. If these documents are not presented, the examination may not be held;

- wear clothing suitable for generally operating the relevant vehicle and appropriate to the temperature. The clothing must not restrict movement or the operation of the pedals. In the case of a person with reduced mobility, clothing must be considered in light of the vehicle's design and the applicable technical and medical requirements;
- appear at the examination in a fit and rested condition and not be under the influence of any substance, medicine, alcohol, narcotic, or stimulant that may adversely affect their ability to drive. The candidate must confirm this by signing the relevant declaration;
- draw one sheet from the set of assessment sheets;
- sign the appropriate section of the driving record concerning the examination start time and the odometer reading;
- confirm their attendance at the examination and, depending on the result, receipt of the assessment sheet by signing the examination report.

22. Important Statutory Provisions Concerning the Issuance of a Driving Licence

The Examination Centre sends the candidate's declarations required by separate legislation for the automatic issuance of a driving licence electronically to the body responsible for maintaining the road-traffic register.

23. Additional Conditions and Information Specified by the Training Organisation

For a period of two years from the date on which a person first acquires driving entitlement, their driving licence is considered a probationary driving licence.

With a probationary driving licence bearing a category "B" entitlement, a trailer may not be towed, except in the case of vehicles operated by the Hungarian Defence Forces.

A person under the age of 18 may not drive outside the territory of Hungary.

E- Learning

- E-learning is the effective use of advanced information-technology and educational-methodology technologies in the distance-learning process. E-learning courses deliver content electronically and digitally, which can be accessed via the internet. During the training, the student receives continuous, comprehensive, and objective feedback on the knowledge acquired. E-learning course materials can also quickly reflect changes in the subject matter.
- E-learning requires course materials and a learning-management system. The course materials generally use multimedia elements, interactive animations, and situational exercises to make the material easy to understand and learn. The learning-management system, e-Titán, identifies the student through a unique login code, records progress through the course materials, and stores test results. The system records the order in which the course sections must be completed, the conditions for progressing — for example, a student may proceed from one chapter to the next only after successfully completing the test — and the time available for studying.
- What is required? Only a computer and an internet browser are required for e-learning. The course materials and the learning-management system are installed on the e-learning provider's IT system, which the student accesses through a computer browser. No special software installation or advanced IT knowledge is required.

Details of Practical Training

- Point 30 of Section 2 (1) of Decree No.24/2005 (IV.21.) of the Minister of Economy and Transport on the detailed rules governing the training and examination of road-vehicle drivers and road-transport professionals defines a “driving record” as a form included in the document register or an electronic device that serves as documentary evidence of the student's practical driving training.
- Each student receives a plastic card suitable for identification. During practical training, after the card is scanned, the system queries the central database each time for the current training data relating to the participants.
- The card remains the property of the driving school. The student uses it during practical training and, after passing the road examination, returns it to the instructor or personally delivers it to the office during customer service hours.

Example of administering a training session:

- After the instructor and student have entered the training vehicle, the student touches the card to the instructor's telephone. The system then retrieves the current training data of the student and the instructor from the central server. The instructor starts the practical lesson in the instructor application.
- The instructor may initiate the end of the training session. The instructor then stops the driving session in the application. The application displays the kilometres driven, the time spent driving, and the actual fee for the practical lesson, which is calculated on a per-minute basis. The route travelled is also displayed.
- A student is considered late if they do not appear at the agreed and recorded time and place of the practical lesson or driving session. In the event of lateness, the instructor is entitled to start the system without the student card and thereby commence the lesson.
- The following are considered absences:
 - arriving more than 15 minutes late;
 - appearing in a condition unfit for driving. The student must be in a condition that enables them to drive the vehicle safely and must not be under the influence of any substance that adversely affects their driving ability. Their body must also contain no alcohol resulting from the consumption of alcoholic beverages;
 - being unable to prove their identity with an official identity document containing a photograph;
 - cancelling the scheduled practical lesson within 48 hours before its start.
- In the event of an absence, the student must pay an absence fee equal to the practical tuition fee corresponding to the scheduled duration of the missed driving session.

Time Guarantee

- At our driving school, every minute is guaranteed to be spent on instruction. If this is not the case, you will pay less.
- Our system ensures that lessons are charged on a per-minute basis. The lesson — and therefore the payment obligation — begins when the instructor starts the lesson in the application and ends when the lesson is stopped in the application.

- A break may also be taken during a driving lesson. During the break, the system does not charge instructional time or distance.

Distance Guarantee

- If you are stuck in traffic, you pay less.
- GPS-based distance measurement ensures that you actually complete the kilometres prescribed by law during your practical training.
